“ Jack Holcomb, the man of stories. I worked for Jack many years back in the middle 90's and loved every minute of it. Jack was an artist when it come telling a joke or a story, many of which I've tried to pass on but it's just not the same without Jack's zeal behind it. Jack used to cook us fillet tails, gravy and biscuits sometimes on those early Sunday mornings before work began. He'd always say, "This job don't pay much, but we'll eat good!" Even though I haven't stayed in touch like I should have, I will always consider Jack and his son Jeff, friends. Jack, you will truly be missed!
